Rudy and Allie Hubbard

PMRG leasing agent Allie Hubbard says she always admired dad JLL managing director Rudy Hubbard's success, but now that she's in the industry herself, she respects what he achieves on a daily basis. They try to meet once a week to talk shop (where she frequently asks him for advice), but it spills over into home life—Allie says her mom probably hears more about cap rates and concessions than she cares to (but is a good sport). Rudy says the most gratifying part of having Allie in the industry is when someone says something complimentary about her, not knowing she's his daughter. He calls her a true student of the business but tells us sometimes when she shares her opinions he feels like the student!
