

Executive Profile

Oliver Fleener

Senior Vice President, Capital Markets
Southern California

Oliver Fleener has been in the Orange County real estate market since 1997 after graduating from University of California, Irvine. In 2012, Oliver moved to the West Coast Office of CLW after starting his career with Colliers Seeley, as well as spending a very successful decade at Grubb & Ellis.

As a 17-year veteran within the industry, Oliver provides his clients with a well-rounded wealth of experience and knowledge within commercial real estate. He focuses a strong portion of business on landlord/agency representation, yet completes a significant amount of tenant representation and corporate services work as well.

Oliver has been involved in transactions located in most of the major areas located in Southern California, with a strong focus in Orange County, including unimproved land development, building sales and leases, and the sale of income-producing properties. As an innovative salesman, Mr. Fleener brings energy and creative insight to transactions while utilizing cutting-edge technological applications, financial modeling expertise, creative marketing and branding, in addition to professional analytical skills.

Ownership models include pension fund advisors to local family trusts and individuals, while the wide-range of representation has included Fortune 100 corporate clients, private and public businesses, technology and professional firms, as well as small start-up companies. Oliver's agency business includes all product and ownership types from Class "A" high-rise towers to suburban Class "B" low- and mid-rise properties.
